Excerpt: . . . is given, in the last decade of the nineteenth century, to the pretensions of the old Rosicrucians, but the fact remains that a society of that name still exists or did in 1884. A statement was published in 1883 to the effect that a lodge of Rosicrucians existed in London, whose members claimed by asceticism to live beyond the allotted age of man, and that the late Lord Lytton had vainly tried to gain admission. Referring to this statement, Rev. E. Walford, M. A. , asked through the medium of Notes and Queries (London, November 15, 1884), whether anything authentic could be learned concerning it. He was answered in the same periodical (December 13, 1884) by the Magister Ternpli of the society, over his address, who stated that the Soc. Rosic. in Anglia still holds several meetings a year in London. The fratres investigate...
