To meditate on the past, to dwell on the deeds and the virtues of our ancestry, and to sanctify times and seasons for their more special remembrance and celebration, has ever been deemed a profitable and becoming employment. It is sanctioned by scripture. Once every year were the tribes of Israel commanded to assemble in Jerusalem, to commemorate the great event of the passover, when the angel of the Lord smote the first born of Egypt, and when in consequence, their fathers were led forth from that land of bondage with a high hand and an outstretched arm, and virtually began their national existence. It is hallowed by custom. Germany celebrates the birth day of Luther; Protestant Christendon unites with her in commemorating the rise of the Reformation; and we annually do honor to the day when our fathers forever renounced allegiance to the throne of England, declared themselves free and independent, and began to live as a nation. It is dictated by the holiest yearnings of nature. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
