It is to this effect: Mr. So-and-so should be seen by a discreet officer, and should be asked whether he admits writing and posting the cards. If he does, his attention should be drawn to the provisions of the Post Office (Protection) Act, 1884, Section 4, under which a person who sends a postal packet having thereon any words, marks or designs of an indecent, obscene or grossly offensive character is guilty of a misdemeanour, and is liable to be fined or imprisoned for 12 months, and he should be cautioned against repeating the offence. The officer who sees Mr. So-and-so should make a written statement of the interview. 65. With regard to the advertisements by...
