A3 U548 2000 OCLC Number: (OCoLC)44425638 Subject: Court administration -- Washington (D. C.). Excerpt: . . . B-284121 complaint process and efforts to eliminate discrimination, which totaled approximately 45 percent for each question, indicates to us that many employees may lack a sense of confidence in the Courts EEO efforts. The Courts and employees addressing these perceptions together might increase the number of employees with such confidence, which should benefit both the Courts and employees. Finally, the responses to our questionnaire very clearly indicate that the Courts have not adequately informed employees of the procedures and protections for reporting fraud, waste, abuse, and mismanagement. In our view, the overriding and long-term solution for the problems we identified is for the leadership of the D. C. Courts to consistently emphasize the importance of complying with human resources policies and principles, to ensure that policies are supported as necessary by appropriate procedures, and to hold managers accountable for compliance. We recognize that the Courts have acted or indicated they would act to address a number of the issues we raised, and we commend the Courts initiative. Nevertheless, the problems we identified in this report, such as providing employees with annual performance appraisals and surveying positions on a systematic and periodic basis, may well persist if the level of emphasis placed by leadership on the importance of personnel matters is unchanged. We believe increased attention and emphasis is warranted because, as in any organization, human capital is the Courts greatest asset, defining the Courts character and capacity to perform. We recommend that the Joint Committee on Judicial Administration, Recommendations to working through the Courts Executive Officer, ensure that personnel the Joint Committee policies are...
